

The Blessed Hairs of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him).

1.0. Introduction.

Muslims show utmost respect and love to the Messenger (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him). This love and admiration extends to anything and everything that is associated with him. Our history testifies that the blessed hairs of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) were devoutly respected by the Companions (may Allāh be pleased with them all) and the pious ancestors after them.

2.0. Did the Prophet (peace and blessings of be upon him) vouch for the practice of preserving his blessed hairs?

From the authentic ahādīth, it is clear that preserving and respecting the hairs is a practice which the Prophet himself encouraged:

- Imām al-Bukhārī narrates in his Sahīh from Anas ibn Mālik that:

When the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) had his head shaved (on the occasion of Hajj), Abū Talha was the first to take his hairs.¹

- Anas (may Allāh be pleased with him) reports:

I saw the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) when the barber was cutting his hair. The Companions were circulating him. Each one wanted the blessed hairs to fall in their hands.²

If his hairs were of no importance or significance, the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) would have prohibited his Companions from preserving them. No report is to be found as such. On the contrary, we find that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) wanted his Companions to keep them, as a form of baraka. The report of Imām Muslim clearly highlights this, where Abū Talha was explicitly told by the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him): ‘Distribute the hairs amongst the people.’³

3.0. What did the Companions and the pious ancestors do with the blessed hairs of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him)?

3.1. They attached value and importance to his hairs.

Imām al-Bukhārī reports in his Sahīh that Ibn Sīrīn once told Ubayda: ‘We have some hairs of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) that we attained from Anas (may Allāh be pleased with him).’ Ubayda replied:

Possessing one hair of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) would be more dear and valuable to me than the entire world and all of its contents.⁴

3.2. They would seek shifā (cure) for his hairs.

Umm Salama (may Allāh be pleased with her) possessed some blessed hairs of the Prophet. When people were ill or affected by the evil eye, then they would come to her with water in a basin. She would then dip the hairs of the Prophet in the water. They would then drink this water or bathe from it as a means of shifā.

3. They would seek victory and success through its baraka.

Qādī Iyād writes that Khālid ibn Walīd (may Allāh be pleased with him) had some hairs of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) in his cap. He used to wear this cap in battle and would be victorious with the blessings of the hairs of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him). In the battle of Yamāma, his cap accidentally fell off during the battle. Rather than to continue fighting without the cap, Khālid ibn Walīd (may Allāh be pleased with him) began searching for his cap, despite the intensity of fighting going on at the time. The Companions were astonished and confused when they saw him pursuing his cap rather than protecting his life from the enemies. After the battle, Khālid ibn Walīd explained to the Companions why the cap was so valuable:

I did not do it for the cap itself, but because of the hair of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) that was in it so I would not be stripped of its blessing and to avoid it falling into the hands of the idol-worshippers.⁶

There are many lessons to be learnt from this heart-warming episode. Firstly, it was the belief and conviction of Khālid ibn Walīd (may Allāh be pleased with him) that such was the power and baraka of the hair, that it was a means to victory in battles. Secondly, Khālid ibn Walīd (may Allāh be pleased with him) valued the hair more than his own life. In the heat of the battle, when the enemies were pressing forward and threatening to kill the Muslims, Khālid ibn Walīd (may Allāh be pleased with him) was more anxious to preserve the Prophet’s hair than his own life. Finally, the enemies of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) have no right to his blessings and tabarruk.

3.4. They would seek peace and bliss in the grave from its baraka.

- Anas ibn Mālik requested to be buried with the hairs of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) under his tongue.⁷
- Mu'āwiya (may Allāh be pleased with him) possessed the shirt, nails and hairs of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him). He asked to be buried with these relics. When he made this bequest he remarked: 'If anything will benefit me [in the grave], then these relics will.'⁸
- Imām Ahmad ibn Hanbal had three hairs from the body of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him). He requested to be buried with one placed on his mouth and the other two on each eye.⁹

4.0. Etiquettes of the ziyārah of his blessed hairs.

- He should be in the state of wudū. Qādī Iyād reports in al-Shifā that Ahmad ibn Fazlawiyya possessed the bow of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him). He said:

I have never touched this bow with my hands except with wudū since I learnt that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him) held this bow with his hand.¹⁰

- He should display humbleness and humility.
- He should read salāt wa'l salām as much as possible.
- He should not turn his back towards the blessed hairs.
- He certainly should not raise his voice.
